ORAL JUDGEMENT

1s. This is an appeal under section 173 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, at the instance of the Insurance Company, challenging the judgement and award passed by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Nadiad, under section 163-A of the said Act.

2. It is pertinent to note that the said award has been passed by order passed below Exh.7 in Motor Accident Claim Petition No.840/96, being the claim petition filed under section 166 of the Act, which is yet pending.

3. Learned counsel for the appellant contends that the Tribunal has erred in law in treating the said Claim Petition under section 163-A as a claim of an interim nature, and has dealt with it in a manner similar to a claim under section 140 of the said Act. It was contended that on account of this approach on the part of the Tribunal, the appellant Insurance Company had no opportunity of leading appropriate evidence and/or meeting the contentions of the original claimants in these proceedings under section 163-A. According to the learned counsel for the appellant, the law as laid down by the Supreme Court does not permit the claimants to pursue a claim under section 163-A of the Act, whether by way of an interim application or even by way of a final decision, as long as the main claim under section 166 of the said Act is pending adjudication. In other words, learned counsel for the appellant contends that the claims filed under section 163-A and section 166 of the said Act are in the nature of alternative remedies, and only one of such remedies can be pursued, whereas the two remedies cannot be pursued simultaneously or in succession. We are obliged to accept this contention on the part of the learned counsel for the appellant in view of the clear decision of the Supreme Court in the case of The Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Hansrajbhai V. Kodala and others, reported in JT 2001(4) SC 477. It is, therefore, obvious that on the facts of the case, since the main claim petition under section 166 of the Act is pending, the Tribunal had no jurisdiction either to entertain or to decide a claim under section 163-A of the said Act. In the premises aforesaid, the impugned award under section 163-A is required to be quashed and set aside. We hold and direct accordingly.

4. The facts of the case, however, require further directions to be given in respect of the amount which may have been deposited by the appellant before the Tribunal, in respect of the impugned award under section 163-A of the said Act.

5. On the facts of the case, we are informed that this Court by order dated 22nd September 1997, passed in Civil Application No.8694/97, had granted ad interim stay of execution of the impugned order on condition that the applicant-appellant deposits with the Tribunal 50% of the amount awarded, and on such deposit being made, consequential directions had been issued to the Tribunal to disburse part of such amount deposited. We are informed that the necessary deposit had in fact been made by the appellant Insurance Company and that the necessary disbursement order has been passed by the Tribunal.

6. In view of the fact that the impugned award under section 163-A has been quashed and set aside, it would normally follow that the appellant Insurance Company would be entitled to restoration of the status quo ante. However, we are mindful of the fact that the main claim under section 166 is yet pending adjudication and are also mindful of the fact that in such a claim petition, it is always open to the claimants to prefer an application under section 140 of the said Act.

7. In the premises aforesaid, and on the facts of the case, we hold by consensus between the learned counsel for the parties that it would be open to the respondents - original claimants to prefer an application under section 140 in the claim petition, now pending under section 166 of the said Act.

8. However, we are also conscious that in a case of fatality from which the main claim petition arose, the maximum the Tribunal could award under section 140 would be Rs.50000/- . Under the disbursement order passed by the Tribunal the original claimants have received some amount (which is less than Rs.50000/-) out of the deposit made by the Insurance Company and therefore it would be appropriate to direct that the said amount may for the present be retained by the original claimants. On an appropriate order being passed under section 140, the necessary deficit shall be made good by the appellant Insurance Company.

9. It is clarified that the amount which is already disbursed in favour of the original claimants out of the said deposit made by the Insurance Company, shall, for the present, not be disturbed and shall be adjusted against the amount that may be awarded by the Tribunal on the adjudication of the claimants' application under section 140 of the said Act, and if necessary, adjusted against the final award under section 168 of the said Act.

10. However, this direction as to retention by the claimants of the amount already disbursed, shall be subject to the claimants filing an undertaking before the Tribunal to the effect that the claimants shall pursue the main claim petition under section 166 of the Act, and obtain an adjudication thereon, on merits and in accordance with law, and that they shall not permit this application to be withdrawn or dismissed for default, or be disposed of in any other manner, and that the amount disbursed in favour of the applicants shall be adjusted in the final award under section 168. If such an undertaking is not filed along with an application under section 140 of the said Act, it shall be open to the appellant Insurance Company to apply to the Tribunal for restitution of the amount already disbursed in favour of the original claimants.

11. This appeal is, therefore, allowed to the aforesaid extent with no order as to costs. Decree accordingly.

12. It requires to be noted that on the facts and circumstances noted hereinabove and in view of the directions consequently issued, it would be appropriate for the Tribunal to expedite the hearing of the main claim petition under section 166 of the said Act, and to dispose of the same as early as possible in consonance with the date of its filing and the workload before the Tribunal.

13. Direct service permitted.
